

WAKE UP OF THE WAR WITH COREY

Sinking of Three German Warships Which Took Part in Fight Off Coast of Chile Avenge Loss

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(The Associated Press.)—The great news of the day is that the German cruiser Nürnberg, one of the warships which escaped from the British in the engagement of December 8, has been sunk.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—(The Associated Press.)—The British naval victory in the South Atlantic was discussed in England today almost to the exclusion of all other phases of the war. Last reports stated the British squadron, after sinking the German cruiser Nürnberg, continued on its way, with the loss of nearly 200 men, was pursuing the fleeing Dresden and Nürnberg. British public is waiting anxiously for further news of this chase.

Wireless reports received here from London indicate that the two cruisers, Nürnberg and Dresden, were sunk. The British fleet, which was in the direction of Port Antonio, off the coast of Chile, was in the Atlantic entrance to the Straits of Magellan and west of the Falkland Islands.

It is reported here also that the German cruiser, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, was sunk in the South Atlantic, and that she was captured by the British. Naval officers, commenting on the battle, note that in all naval engagements in the present war there has been a disparity between the losses of the victors and the vanquished.

DIFFERENT ON LAND.
In the case of the German cruiser, the British were practically unscathed, and that is true of the British in their victories. In the case of the German, the reverse is true. The British have been practically unscathed, and that is true of the British in their victories.

ON PROGRAM SUGGESTED Council Committees and Civic Commission in Favor of Making Improvements Out of Bond Money

Substantial plans for the southeastern fair at Lakewood, contracts of which will result in the employment of at least 1,000 men who are now out of work in Atlanta, were laid at a luncheon of the house of representatives of the Atlanta chamber of commerce last Thursday afternoon.

At the same time, city council took up the consideration of resolutions, passed by two city council committees and one civic committee, which, if passed, will result in the building of certain sewerage and water works and thus give work to approximately 500 men more.

With much influence behind both of these improvements, the problem of Atlanta's unemployed, which has become a daily problem, was seriously considered. The project will give work not only to unemployed laborers but also to trained craftsmen who have been temporarily laid off on account of existing conditions.

A spirit of enthusiasm and harmony reigned at the chamber of commerce luncheon. Speeches were made by Rev. J. H. Ordan, chairman of a committee on the unemployment question, and by Jerome Jones, editor of the Journal of Labor, outlining the situation of labor as it is in Atlanta today.

Mr. R. W. Wilkinson, president of the chamber, then reviewed the plans for the Lakewood fair, which will be one of the largest ever held in the south. The fair, which is being organized by the Atlanta fair association, is proposed to be held at Lakewood, Ga., in the summer of 1915.

The greater part of the construction of the fair grounds at Lakewood, which is being organized by the Atlanta fair association, is proposed to be held at Lakewood, Ga., in the summer of 1915.

Frederick J. Paxson offered a resolution that the city council be authorized to make a preliminary study of the project. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 15 to 1.

Victor H. Krigshaber, chairman of the committee on the unemployment question, then spoke. He said that the city council should be authorized to make a preliminary study of the project.

It is probable that the senate will strike this amendment from the bill. The bill is now in the hands of the committee on the unemployment question.

The creation of an additional district will not interfere with the original plan to create an additional federal district in the senate to be known as the middle district.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(The Associated Press.)—The German line across France is said by the French to be the same as it was before the battle of the Marne. The German official statement today gives few details of the fighting in France, although asserting that the allies in one instance were repulsed with heavy losses.

The French announcement says the allies have prosecuted the offensive successfully at points scattered along the way across the country. Specific mention is made of the capture of trenches, of victories in artillery duels and of advancing. Those onslaughts led to a slight counter attack by the Germans.

The German statement refers to the conflict in the Argonne, where it is stated that the allies were repulsed. The German military authorities say the battle is continued, and that a small party of Russian soldiers is taking part in the campaign in southern Poland, where, according to unofficial advice from Berlin, the Russian army has been thrown back, the war office statement merely says that attacks of the enemy were repulsed. To the north, in East Prussia, the fighting has diminished in intensity.

In the northern region, says the German statement, only a few encounters are proceeding. Allies in Belgium Gain Ground Slowly but Surely

This appears to be the open season for German warships.

Well, the Kaiser is in hard luck. Sick, and on the eve of Christmas, too.

President Wilson has set another precedent and that is that there is no necessity of writing a message of book length.

Needs of the Army.

The annual report of the Secretary of War is marked by a candor and conservatism that will appeal strongly to the thoughtful public. Its presentation of the conditions and the needs of the army is a statement of fact untinted by any spirit of rank militarism, facts which the people ought to know and which Congress ought seriously to consider.
The Secretary's plea is in for a great standing army but for a degree of preparedness that is consistent with national welfare and security.

Persons who are given to decrying the United States army as it is today will find scant comfort in the Secretary's report. "While our existing organization is of exceedingly small numbers," he says, "it is unquestionably in as excellent condition as any similar number of men in any other military establishment in the world. I do not believe that anyone will dispute the statement that the army has never been in better condition than it is today, from the most recently enlisted man up to the highest officers." Yet, there is no blinking the fact that our army, excellent though it be as far as it goes, is in need of reinforcement, by methods, of course, in keeping with the principles of this republic. And, as the Secretary well says, "If we are authorized to use this exceedingly valuable nucleus to produce the reserve needed, there never was a time when the experiment had so great a chance of success as now."

The total strength of the regular army is now approximately four thousand, seven hundred officers and eighty-seven thousand, seven hundred and eighty men, including the quartermaster corps of three thousand, eight hundred and nine, and the hospital corps of four thousand, and fifty-five. Seven hundred and fifty-eight officers, and seventeen thousand, nine hundred men are in the Coast Artillery, thus being stationary. A thousand odd officers and eighteen thousand, four hundred and thirty-four men are in technical, noncombatant branches of the army. This reduces the so-called mobile army, that is forces which can be moved from place to place, to two thousand, nine hundred and thirty-five officers and fifty-one thousand, four hundred and forty-six men. But of this number, fewer than thirty-one thousand are available for service in the continental United States, the remainder being employed in the Philippines, Hawaii, the Canal Zone and at other outpost points. Additional forces will soon be sent to the Canal zone, thereby reducing the mobile forces in the United States proper, to twenty-four thousand, six hundred men. The organized militia, or National Guard of the various States comprises eight thousand, three hundred and twenty-three officers, and one hundred and nineteen thousand and eighty-seven men.

"If all of the National Guard could be summoned in the event of war, and should all respond (an inconceivable result), and if they were all found fairly efficient in the first line—that is the troops who would be expected to take the field immediately—we could summon a force in this country of Regulars and National Guard amounting to nine thousand, eight hundred and eighty officers and one hundred and forty-eight thousand, four hundred and ninety-two men. And this is absolutely all. The only other reserve would then be volunteers, and to equip, organize, train and make them ready would take,
at the smallest possible estimate, six months."

This is the War Department's estimate of the nation's present preparedness as regards military resources. Evidently, there is need of earnest study and prompt action to the end that these resources may be strengthened. It has never been and should not be the policy of the United States to maintain a great standing army, but as a matter of economy as well as prudence the army should be large enough at least to serve the purposes for which it exists, and should be supplemented by a reserve sufficient to the simple needs of national defense.

Once again the people were impressed by the sense and effectiveness of what the president has to say.
Rather subtle knock that England gave Russia, by saying that the sorriest German troops were in the fighting in the east.

And now comes Petrograd with the announcement that the Russians never intended to hold Lodz. In ferring that the Germans were permitted to do the holding for them.

Twenty Millions for Cotton Needs.

The announcement that Georgia's share of the one hundred and thirty-five million dollar cotton loan fund will be available next week is deeply important to all the business interests of the State, and particularly so to merchants and farmers. Approximately twenty million dollars will thus be added to the credit facilities already in action. The problem of financing surplus cotton will be simplified.
The means of practical adjustment to unusual circumstances will be broadened, and the whole process of business recovery will be strengthened and pressed forward.

The Wade Cotton Pool, as this measure of relief is popularly called, has been formed by representative banks and kindred institutions throughout the country, a million dollars of the total fund having been subscribed beyond the cotton belt. The plan has the sanction of the national Government and the hearty co-operation of the members of the Federal Reserve Board. It is very encouraging to know that the actual using of the fund is at hand and that Georgia is to share so liberally in its distribution.

Mistakes are bound to be made in this war. It is impossible for us to be on the spot.

One of the European problems is what to do with the unemployed prisoners.

In the list of war supplies sent this country, we haven't seen any Christmas liquor for the Russians.

Solid Ground for Confidence.

"Industry and commerce unquestionably are on the mend. Here facts, not aspirations, speak to the nation. Unemployed are buying again, and to their places in factory and mill; the favorable balance of international trade has jumped from sixteen million dollars for September to seventy millions for November; the cotton problem is being solved, some railroads are buying again, and the iron and steel industries see daylight ahead. Even the preternaturally timorous must feel that the last ten days have brought us solid comfort and solid ground for confidence."

These words of optimism from the Chicago Tribune are the more noteworthy in that they are sober and restrained. They represent the opinion of watchful and conservative men the country over, and are confirmed by the reports of dependable newspapers in almost every region of the United States. No inrush of unusual prosperity is to be expected, but there is ample evidence of a steady tread toward normal conditions. Certainly, there has been a vast improvement over the state of business affairs which obtained three months ago, an improvement so general and so sustained that its permanence cannot be questioned. Then business was hesitant and chiefly concerned with means of security. Now business is confident and is bent upon means of expansion.
The worst effects of the war crisis are over, and richer opportunities which this country's position in world affairs vouchsafes are beginning to unfold.
Therefore the inherent strength of American resources and American character will find freer and freer play. The coming months will be free from political disquietude. The activities of the Government, as of the people, will be devoted to labors of prosperity, and the one dominant idea will be that of moving forward and building up.

We are quite willing to admit that this is no weather for joy riding.

We want Mexico to understand that we are neutral and don't propose to be an asylum for Mexican bulets.

"I'll Start Again Tomorrow"

The fire that wrought havoc at the Edison plant at West Orange, New Jersey, is a matter of nationwide regret. Buildings and machinery into which the great inventor had put years of labor and genius were swept away. Research and experiment that mean much to the public are halted; and, perhap, long, intricate paths of investigation that were nearing a fruitful end must be slowly retraced from the beginning.

The loss of property, estimated at some seven million dollars, is regrettable enough, and the temporary loss of employment by several thousand people is to be lamented. But that which most impresses the imagination is the sacrifice of plans and ideas which were transpiring the whole world. The Edison plant was a city within itself, or, perhaps it were truer to say, an empire—a wizard empire from which new wonders and rich services were continually emerging.

Most admirable, however, is the attitude of the inventor himself in the face of his misfortune:
"Although I am more than sixty-seven years old, I'll start all over again tomorrow." There spoke the infinite patience and fortitude and hopefulness which are such distinctive elements in the genius of Thomas Edison.

A man never shares the self-esteem of his neighbor.

The plotter makes plans, but the plodder carries them out.

Speaking of honesty—there is the man who married his landlady rather than beat her out of his board bill.

LAND TITLES

THE FOREIGN COUNTRYMAN.
BY FREDERICK J. HARRIS.

The American system of landholding contemplates the ownership of the soil as an individual property, and quantities, so as to produce an independent and prosperous class of agriculturists as a foundation for the political state. Such an idea has been propounded by philosophers during all of known history, and Solon, the Athenian law-giver, procured a reditu-tion of the landed property at Athens on this basis as a means to remedy existing political evils.

But in all ages, it has been found that the increase in population has brought about complications which modified and finally, in most instances, destroyed the altruistic basis of land titles which seem to be the natural and primitive one. Ultimately, instead of rights arising from occupation and use of the soil, rights derived from acquisition and conquest dictated the character of land tenure, and with the single exception of the Hebrew nation, the holding of the agricultural interest became subservient to some potentate, king or overlord.

The land system of the Hebrews was founded on the conception that property was held in common and that the land was to be used for the benefit of the Hebrew people, was selected for the home of the Chosen People and its division among them according to families was a Divine institution. The possession of the Hebrews required that the land should be idle every seventh or sabbatical year and that at the end of the year the land should be returned to the family to which it had originally belonged. The system of transfer and encumbrance should become invalidated and the land returned free of all restraint to the family to which it had originally belonged. The system of renewal and refreshment prevented the incumbrance of outward and artificial restraints which have entirely changed the character of other land systems, originally altruistic.

Thus, the primitive condition of the land titles of the greater portion of Europe, as well as of England, was the Teutonic folk system in which the population was segregated into well-defined classes, the individuals of each clan possessing interests of three sorts in the total body of land included within the boundaries of the clan. The first sort was the right of usufruct, or the right of use, and was held by the clan as a whole. The second sort was the right of ownership, or the right of disposal, which was held by the clan as a whole. The third sort was the right of inheritance, or the right of succession, which was held by the clan as a whole. The system was held and administered entirely in common. He also had a right to an allotment of a proportionate share of the land, which he held as an independent farmer, except that he was bound by community laws as to the manner of cultivation, which he was bound by community laws as to the manner of disposal, which he was bound by community laws as to the manner of inheritance, which the community could not interfere after segregation had been made.

The effect of the overlays of artificial privilege during the passage of centuries is best exemplified by the end system found to be in existence in England when they took possession of India and which have been minutely studied and described by the English administrators of the various provinces. The system illustrates the course of dealings with the land in a condition of a high rate of population which brings the necessity for intensive cultivation and use.

The origin of land systems in India is hidden in the obscurity of prehistoric times. It is theorized that the condition which existed immediately prior to known history was one of feudal tenure in which there was a regular descent from the king through military subordinate to the cultivator. The history of the Indian history begins with the Mohammedan conquest of India and the wiping out of class distinctions among the people, since the Mohammedans were a nomadic people and the Indian people were a settled people. The median form of belief are on a theoretical ground of equality.

The theory that was substituted for the feudal system, that is, that was substituted for the feudal system, was that of the land as a common property, the former system, while the latter system, the land was not disturbed, it was charged with taxes and exactions that took from one-third to one-half of the product of the land. The land was the property of the state, and the cultivator was a tenant of the state. Portions of these revenues were granted out to favorites and officials and eventually became customary encumbrances on the land and a portion of the title of the land itself. This system was a system of control, it was their policy to confirm, as far as possible, the existing land titles, and they recognized not only the right of the cultivator to the land, but the right of the state to the land. The land was the property of the state, and the cultivator was a tenant of the state. The land was the property of the state, and the cultivator was a tenant of the state. The land was the property

GIVING PERSONAL ENGRAVED XMAS CARDS

ARTISTIC HOG AND HOMINY DISPLAY.

Among the many artistic window and hominy displays, none attracted more attention than a window in Cone's drug store on Whitehall street, a picture of which is shown above.

The decorations consisted chiefly of hominy candies worked into various figures suggestive of the hog and hominy spirit, such as ham and eggs on a platter.

Thieves plying trade in many sections of the city. Thirteen reported holdups and burglaries keep police on the jump.

Thirteen reported holdups, robberies and burglaries are keeping the police and court busy. The police are searching for the criminals.

Alderman Elmer Edgar Dunlap, 1027 Ponce de Leon avenue, reported a burglary in his bedroom Thursday morning at 2:45 o'clock.

Mr. Dunlap, whose wife was ill in another room under the care of a trained nurse, was awakened by a person in the room.

"Who's there?" he called. The burglar, supposed to be a negro man, fled out of the room and down the stairs, making his exit by a rear window. The police found two pairs of the man's trousers, belonging to Mr. Dunlap's boys, and twenty cigars were missing.

N. A. Moore, 231 Richardson street, reported that burglars broke down the back door of his home Wednesday evening while everyone was out, and stole two gold rings, a bracelet and some valuable old coins.

Nick Theodore, 162 East Harris street, reported he was held up Tuesday night near his home. The robber took his watch, chain and chain, and some money.

A gold bracelet and a revolver were reported stolen from the home of Lee Shields, 40 North Boulevard. Twenty-seven dollars in cash was stolen by burglars from the register of Rogers grocery store, 205 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Seven dollars and a large quantity of linen was taken by burglars from the home of Mrs. R. A. Malone, 124 Courtland street.

M. M. Duncan, 35 1-2 West Alabama street, reported his Ford automobile had been stolen.

Judge Ben H. Hill, of the Fulton superior court, reported his machine had been robbed of two new tires.

One burglar failed to bring home the bacon. Mrs. W. A. Woodfin, 245 East Pine street, alone in her home Wednesday night, heard the burglar breaking into the house. She telephoned the police. The thief, evidently hearing the summons for the officers, changed his mind and did not enter the house.

Other minor burglaries were also reported.

Asbury Park, N. J.—"I was in such a nervous, weak, run-down condition that I could not sleep nights, every little thing disturbed me, my appetite was very poor, and I was losing flesh. I was so nervous at times that I used to have fits and hysterics. I did my housework for a family of four, and they became alarmed at my condition. I tried beef, iron and wine and cod liver oil emulsion without benefit. One day my doctor suggested that I try Vinol and told me it had helped others. I did so, and it has simply done wonders for me. I am a well woman and entirely free of my nervousness."—Mrs. Katherine E. Klein, Asbury Park, N. J.

Each reliable testimony should convince others of the value of Vinol. Therefore, if you are worn out, weak and nervous, and want new strength and vitality, we ask you to take Vinol. If it fails to benefit you, we give you your money.

LUMBER MANUFACTURERS FIGHTING FREIGHT RATES

Complaint Against Railroads Is Heard Thursday by Special Examiner Watkins

A freight rate only 2 cents a hundred more than the lumber rate on carload shipments is asked of the railroads by the Yellow Pine Lumber, Door and Blind Manufacturers' association and allied building industries in the north in their petition which is being heard again Thursday by Edgar Watkins, special examiner of the interstate commerce commission.

The manufacturers were heard Thursday, with the probability that the hearing would last through the day. The railroads will be heard following the manufacturers.

At points north of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi river the railroads charge a rate of only 2 to 3 cents in excess of the lumber rate in the territory south and east of the river they charge a rate twice and four times as great.

W. S. Watts, representing the Freight Agent and Adjustment company, of Washington, which is pushing the manufacturers' claim, says that outside of the south the maximum rate is only 3 cents above the lumber rate. He also asserted that the present rate in the south had been in force for thirty years.

R. F. Dalton, president of the Snow Lumber company, of High Point, N. C., testified that the rate had resulted in his business being confined almost entirely to North Carolina, and William M. Otis, a Columbia manufacturer, showed a similar experience in his state.

Hundreds of people stopped to admire the window and E. H. Cone, the proprietor of the two Cone drug stores, received many compliments on it.

GERMANS CONFISCATE
COPPER IN BELGIUM

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Dec. 10.—According to a telegram from Maastricht, Holland, says the Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent, the Germans are confiscating telephone wire and all copper articles of domestic use in Belgium.

CHECKS CROUP INSTANTLY
You know croup is dangerous, and you should also know the source of security that comes from always having Foley's Hoarse and Tar Compound in the house. It cuts the thick mucus and cleans away the phlegm, stops the strangling cough and gives the child breathing and quiet sleep. Take it for croup, colds, tickling throat, hoarseness and for bronchitis and it grapples with the trouble. Contains no opiates. Every mother is a friend. Sold everywhere.—(Adv.)

"THE SPOILERS" DRAWS BIG CROWD TO GRAND

Rex Beach's Stirring Novel Is Cleverly Presented in Motion Pictures

"The Spoilers," by Rex Beach, was shown at the Grand theater this afternoon to crowded houses. It will be repeated tonight, Friday and Saturday matinees and evenings. William Farnum, brother of Dustin Farnum, has the leading role and is supported by an unusually strong company.

Rex Beach sat in the audience when these stirring motion pictures of his famous novel were first shown in New York and he expressed amazement at their remarkable fidelity and truthfulness to the life pictured in his book. The fight between Farnum and the "villain," which comes as a climax to one of the reels, is considered the most exciting and hardest fought battles with fists ever shown on a picture screen. Five cents at matinees for all seats and 10 cents in the evenings.

The approach of winter heralded by the snap and tang in the air which marked Thursday lent an added impetus to the campaign for the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals which commenced in the early morning and continued through the day.

The Atlanta Woman's club had charge Thursday and at the street corners and each store could be seen hands of eager workers assisting in the disposal of the seals.

Mrs. Hugh Willet acted as the chairman of the day and was assisted by Mrs. P. J. McGovern, president of the Atlanta Woman's club and Mrs. Irving S. Thomas, chairman of the Child Welfare committee.

A volunteer army of young girls all deeply interested lent their assistance and with each sale pinned the tiny red cross on the purchaser which is the symbol of the fight being waged in Atlanta by the Anti-Tuberculosis society.

Merry bands of school children also assisted in the afternoon and stood at the street corners offering the stamps with the face of Jolly St. Nicholas radiating good cheer to the passers by.

In Savannah the use of the Red Cross seal instead of the usual gold stars or punches marked a recent innovation at several of the large bridge parties of the season.

The street sale will continue for one week and all organizations in the city have joined in the nation-wide campaign being waged for the relief of suffering humanity.

Headquarters of the stamp campaigners have been moved from the Gould building to the parlor of the Piedmont, where George A. Simms, general manager of the crusade, is in command. It is planned to sell in Atlanta between now and Christmas approximately 100,000 of the Red Cross stamps. Red Cross hosts are to be established at the principal street corners, at the railroad stations, in the hotel lobbies and shops and at the chamber of commerce building.

Children to Aid Santa Claus

"An Evening of Music" by the pupils of Miss Crumley's school in West End will be an event of the season at 8 o'clock at the Lee Street school building. Tickets will be 10 cents, and 25 cents, the proceeds to be devoted to providing Christmas gifts for poor children who otherwise would be unvisited by Santa Claus.

The young music pupils taking part in the recital will be Eva Moore, Edith Moore, Mary Bell, Sarah Irvine, Katherine Pool, Edna Boyd, Margaret Bryson, Sarah Bigham, Mary Paine, Evelyn Kelly, Teddy Parish, Nell Clayton, Kathryn Vase, Mary Brown Spaulding, Thelma Glass, Constance Spaulding, Holbrook Hatfield, Vincenza Allen, Lella Bane, Agnes Ketchum, Anne Allen, Missale Kamper, Freda Smith, Alice Cooper, Edward Dobbs, Edwin Zukauskas, Cady Bryson and Annie Griffin.

Meeting of Embroidery Club

The 1915 Embroidery club will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. B. C. Lumbkin at the residence of Mrs. Hub Huddleston, 294 Highland avenue.

A prize has been offered by the president for the most original and useful article to be made, the cost of material used not to exceed 10 cents. After the prize is awarded the article will be auctioned off, the proceeds to be put in the club treasury.

Members are expected to be prompt on time as judges will take charge of articles entered immediately after 3 o'clock. There is no restriction as to the number of articles entered.

MISS HORINE PRESENTED AT AFTERNOON RECEPTION

The beautiful reception at which Mrs. Edward M. Horine and Mrs. E. Lee Worsham, entertained last Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club, marked the occasion of Miss Edith Horine's formal presentation to society.

The attractive young debutante, with her mother and sister, stood to receive the guests in the ball room where the rich color scheme of red and green was accented by elaborate and artistic detail the approval of the glad Yuletide season. Festoons of smilax hung from the ceiling and entwined the white columns down the length of the spacious hall. Holly wreaths brilliant with red berries and caught with satin bows showed in charming relief against the background of densely grouped palms and ferns which lined the walls of the terrace and were banded against the large open fireplace at the end of the ball room.

A mural decoration of smilax and southern bamboo interspersed with the brilliant bolonnesia blossoms completed the Christmas decorations of the club apartments, and during the afternoon a beautiful musical program was rendered by a stringed orchestra concealed in a tower of palms and ferns.

Assisting in receiving were a group of married friends of the hostesses of the lovely occasion. Mrs. Horine wore a handsome gown of white lace after a foundation of soft white satin.

Mrs. Worsham was crowned in white glass satin embroidered in pearls and gracefully draped in white tulle.

Miss Horine's dress costume was fashioned of soft white charmeuse with overdraperies of white satin embroidered in threads of silver and gold. She held an arm bouquet of delicate pink roses and gladioli.

The supper dance to follow the reception at which will be entertained the season's debutantes and the members of the younger set will be a brilliant event of the evening. Dancing will precede supper which will be served at 11 o'clock.

The young hostess was charming in her imported gown of white crepe de mear with overdrapes of blue sangle in silver.

Mrs. Horine was crowned in white satin combined with tulle and her flowers were parma violets. Mrs. Toulman Williams carried James Goodrum as a bridesmaid in the entertainment of the guests. Mrs. Williams wore pale blue satin and chiffon and Mrs. Goodrum was crowned in satin. Eighty guests were present.

To Visitors

Mrs. Joe Stewart will entertain at bridge Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dubois Johnston, of New York City, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Duffry.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffry entertained at an informal dancing party Wednesday evening in honor of their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Johnston.

Afternoon Party for Children

There will be a story-telling party for children at the home of Mrs. John H. Leverette at 666 Ponce de Leon avenue on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

A program has been added at the home of Robert Blackburn, Miss Helen Stewart and Mrs. John Leverette.

Mite Box Party

A mite box party will be given the children at the Methodist church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

"This Catsup ---Is Good!"

There is no one quite so hard to please as the Gibbs Cat. He INSISTS upon CHOICE Ingredients, — and he gets them. He insists upon TABLE Sugar, mind you,—and sound, full-ripe Tomatoes. Then he insists upon PLENTY of TIME. But after he blends and simmers and cools the various ingredients, and finally says "This Catsup is Good,"—it IS!
